"Mushroom trouble"

Once upon a time an ugly witch, called Stella, lived in a monumental, strange castle. She didn't have any friends and she didn't go out.

The problem was on her nose. She had a disgusting growth on it. She couldn't do anything about it. The worst thing was that the growth looked like a mushroom. Her magic was useless in this case.

Therefore she hated mushrooms more than any other things in the world.

Stella tried to find a solution to make herself more attractive. She used her magic wand many times to change her appearance, but it didn't work. Her aim was to meet a handsome wizard. She didn't like being alone.

One day Stella decided to destroy all mushrooms. She made a poisonous liquid and spread it in the air.

Unfortunately, the mushrooms not only disappeared but even grew bigger.

The growth on her nose became bigger, too.

It made Stella even more unhappy.

The moral of the story is:

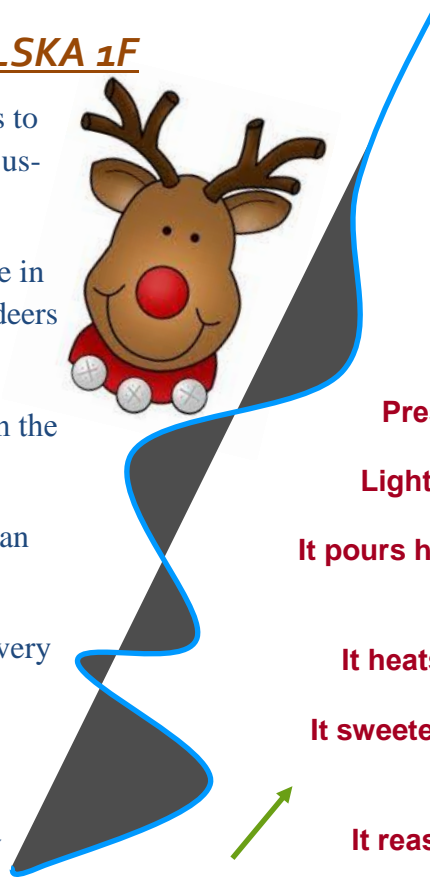

"People should accept or try to change themselves not the others".

ALL ABOUT REINDEER BY ELIZA ZAMOLSKA 1F

- Ø Reindeers are able to survive the severe winter thanks to dug lichens from the snow, which they probably find using their sense of smell
- Ø Reindeers were probably accustomed for the first time in the fifth century BC. Hunters used domesticated reindeers as bait
- Ø Widely spaced reindeers' hooves help them to walk in the snow
- Ø Reindeer has a well-developed sense of direction, it can find the way even during blizzard
- Ø A male reindeer typically fight using their hooves, it very rarely uses the antlers. If antlers snarled, both males would die of hunger
- Ø Reindeers are the best swimmers of all cervids, because their hair is empty inside and it is as a life buoy

„Smile”

Shy...

Forgotten...

Pressed in the sense...

Lightweight and quiet...

It pours honey on your aching heart...

It heats the way of life...

It sweetens the taste of transience...

It reassures the soul...

It delights the body.

PERFECT MODEL OF LETTER FOR AN EXAM

Dear Kate,

Guess what? I visited Manchester and Liverpool. First, I had to go to Warsaw with my dad. Next I went by plane at 6 pm. I got to Liverpool at 8 pm local time. At the airport in Liverpool Robert took me home and I really liked it. The match was very good. Man City won 3-2 with Bayern Munich. My favourite player Sergio Kun Aguero scored hat-trick. For Bayern, Robert Lewandowski and Xabi Alonso scored 2 goals. Manchester has two big clubs, Manchester City and Manchester United. You should visit it one day.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Best,
XYZ

A friend in need is a friend indeed

This day was sunny. That's all I can say.

It all started three years ago, when I felt what justice was for the first time. I met many people, but all of them, except one, weren't brave enough to wield justice. This man was my best friend, when he needed help, one minute later I was ready to do whatever he asked for. He was ready to help me too, but at that moment there was nothing he could do for me.

He was ill. 41°C. Headache, stomachache, sore throat... He was a good man, when somebody needed his help - "No problem" 3-5 minutes and done. But now he needed help, someone had to help him. Homework and lessons from the past 2 weeks weren't easy to handle. But we did it.

This day was sunny... but what did you expect from spring?
 I went to him with all those books, notebooks, homeworks etc. And we began "recovery".
 When I had medical problems he always helped me. I couldn't decline his call. That was the matter of justice. We started with the easiest to handle - History. He's one big History encyclopedia - his parents teach this subject at schools. Then we started with harder and harder things - English, Polish, Music - he understood it. When we finished everything, one subject remained. His "nemesis"

I tried to help him understand what we had learned during those two weeks. But we failed. When I was supposed to go, I reminded myself when he was "teaching" me History. Déjà vu ...
 And then - bright spark in the tunnel. His parents are teachers. When he was helping me how to understand History, he visualized it so I was very focused. His parents told him, that if something was presented right, everyone would remember it. And then, I began the most insane way of teaching. What he couldn't understand, I visualized it as Bonaparte's and Kościuszko's tactics. Every field of a figure, every 1+1 was successful. He led himself and the soldiers to victory every time. When he got back to school, teachers couldn't believe that he knows those 2 weeks better than us. But I could. Goodbye general a² !
 This day was sunny. But I spent it with him.
